Peer Counselors Teach a Valuable Lesson

By Tim State
reprinted from the Stentor

It was an exciting evening from the beginning, when Ladie Pospisil, Sergeant of Security walked across the stage to his seat. The standing-room-only crowd went wild. "I love it when you're forceful!" yelled a student in the back. As the crowd was getting psyched, sixteen of Lake Forest College's hottest women were adding final touches to their image, all in hopes of winning the "Mr. Snowflake 1989" title, sponsored by the Peer Counselors.

The five judges took their seats, and the lights were dimmed. Hosts Michelle Niles and Brook Besinger welcomed everyone and thanked the five judges: former Chicago Bear Otis Wilson, Pospisil, Assistant Dean of Students Bruce King, Volleyball and Women's Basketball Coach Jackie Slaats, and Sophomore Peer Counselor Traci Cleveland.

The sixteen contestants, who were guys dressed as females, made their first appearance while walking to their seats. The Senior contestants were: Charlie King, Tim Morgan, Steve Pape, and Tim Ellesworth.

While Junior contestant was Brad Matheson. Sophomore contestants were: John Weis, Ted Dever, Sean Gill, Guy Collins, Peter Day, Kevin Delaney, and Mike May. The two Freshman contestants were Laz Kindelan and Dave Wakabayashi.

The contestants were then judged on beauty and poise. As Niles and Besinger told about each contestant's hobbies, interests, and personal background, the ladies were allowed to strut their stuff for the judges and the audience. The contestants interests and hobbies varied from watching little boys play to modeling Komonos to arranging flowers. While some contestants found this test quite easy to master, others found it more difficult, especially Ellesworth (or "Elle Train") who was trying to master his high heels. The scores were tallied and ten semifinalists were selected.

Between each contest, Peer Counselors performed short skits to remind students and faculty that it is possible to have fun without the use of alcohol. "The entire purpose of the night was to show that it is possible to have good clean fun without using alcohol," said Barb Stadheim, an advisor to the peer counselors. "We need more of these events. We were high on humor."

Finally, the judges named Freshman Laz Kindelan second runner-up, Sophomore Kevin Delaney first runner-up, and in a very emotional moment, Otis Wilson crowned Freshman Dave Wakabayashi "Mr. Snowflake 1989."

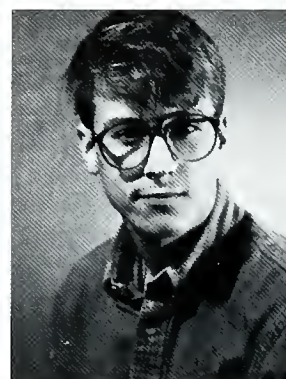

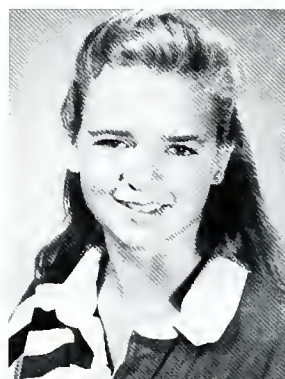

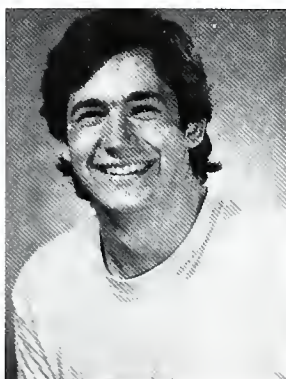

Wakabayashi entered the contest because he thought it would be a lot of fun and "I would personally wanted to make a statement that you can have fun without drinking." Wakabayashi said he had a wonderful time, and he was just as much a part of the audience as he was a participant.

When asked if he was nervous at all he said he went at it from the perspective of an actor. "I just enjoyed myself. I saw everyone laugh and that was good enough for me." Wakabayashi looks forward to next year's contest, and it will be "an honor" to hand over his crown to "Mr. Snowflake 1990."

Campus jobs are necessary

What is the purpose of on-campus jobs? Is it an excuse to pay students money? Are all of the jobs on campus really necessary, or are there positions created just to provide work for the students?

There are some students on campus who feel that certain jobs given to students are not really essential and have been created as an easy way for students to get money.

"The validity of some campus jobs is questionable," commented freshman Mike Stemmler. Stemmler is one of several who felt the campus job program should be looked at closely to see if it could be made more efficient.

Shaw Safo, a sophomore agrees with Stemmler. Shaw feels the college should, "eliminate jobs that are not needed and create more that are."

Jim McCoy, a junior, recalls a campus job he had a few years ago, where he was to pick up litter around the campus. "I'd go to my room and sleep, empty my garbage into my trash bag, return a few hours later, and get paid for it."

Is it fair that one person should get by so easy while another person has to work to earn their four dollars an hour? Kim Little, a freshman, felt that "they got the job before I did."

Gordon White, Director of Financial Aid, is "not aware of any (areas where student jobs are not necessary), and if they had been, they would have been eliminated." White felt that the different offices have been "creative in making employment opportunities for students."

White, who coordinates referrals for on-campus jobs felt the students needed to talk with their supervisors if there are positions that could be made more efficient.

If a person sees a problem with workers sitting around and studying, he suggested that one goes to the supervisor and say, "I'd like to work for you because I hear your workers get a lot of studying done," and seeing what type of response they get.

"Generally, the students do a superb job and make a contribution to the college and their education," said White. "Without them, we couldn't run the library or operate the sports center at night, or provide 24-hour security."

There are currently over 450 students employed on campus, and White says there are still positions available. Anyone can apply for an on-campus job, as you don't need to be receiving financial aid. If you would like to work on campus, stop by the Financial Aid Office in North Hall.

McCoy summed up some thoughts surrounding the issue when he said, "There is not a job that is useless. The job is what you make it. You can have an important job and make it useless, and you can have a useless job and make it important."

SAFE RIDE serves campus community

How many times have you said, "I'll be all right to drive," or "nothing will happen to me — I've only had a few drinks" as you stumble to your car? Did you know that around 60 people telephoned SAFE RIDE last year to bring them back to campus after a night of drinking?

SAFE RIDE is a service on campus which voluntarily picks up any Lake Forest College student who is too drunk to drive home.

Dean of Students Ron Miller remarked that, "SAFE RIDE is one of the best examples I've seen of cooperation among fraternities, sororities and other student organizations." Miller added that "This organization is a big step in promoting responsible drinking."

This confidential service is increasing in popularity, possibly because with the recent plethora of drunk driving publicity students are more aware of the nationwide problem of drinking and driving. One major factor that seems to have more people at LFC taking advantage of SAFE RIDE is the terrible accident that occurred last year.

Tuey Connell, President of the Panhellenic Council, agrees that, "the direct cause for the popularity of SAFE RIDE this year is due to the death of Meg de Bourbon."

Connell adds, "The accident got to the heart of our campus. Many people were affected because everyone is related in our small community."

Even before SAFE RIDE was in operation this year, a number of students called seeking the service.

Two students a night drive the college vans while one person stays at the college to receive incoming phone calls. Dean Miller said, "It takes a lot of cooperation to make it work." Indeed, without these volunteers, SAFE RIDE would not be available. The number of calls a night fluctuates and seems to depend on whether there are planned activities on campus.

Many people in the past have abused the service and called just for a free ride. Others have called because they needed a ride from town in the middle of the winter. It must be said that SAFE RIDE is not a limousine service. To know if someone is actually too drunk to drive or just too lazy, the person from SAFE RIDE asks the caller some questions to judge his or her condition.

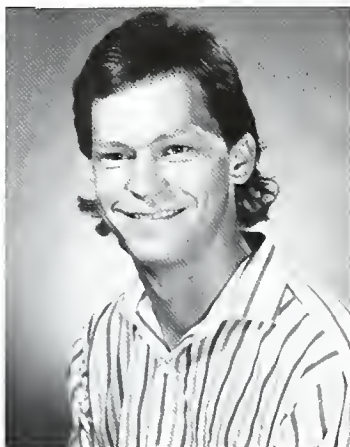

Connell remembers one time when students called from the candy store "Sweets" for a ride home. Connell came to the conclusion that "they must have been eating too many rum balls!"

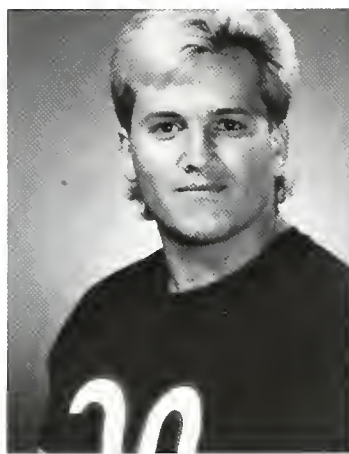

If you find yourself in a predicament which may involve drunk driving do not hesitate to call SAFE RIDE at 295-9045 or 234-3100 (ask for SAFE RIDE). Their hours are Tuesday through Thursday from 10 p.m. until 1 a.m. and on Friday and Saturday nights from 8 p.m. until 1:30 a.m.

"In sum, the philosophy lonscape (in America) is largely bleak . . ." — Allan Bloom, The Closing of the American Mind, (1987)

Allan Bloom is a fool. Certainly philosophy speaks to us every day. It tells us, "Live with intensity, search for truth, love your friend, raise your arms in triumph, question yourself." When I have adhered to that philosophy which allows me to live with the intensity of a tidal wave and the pure thought of a great thinker, I will look at Allan Bloom, smile, and flip him the bird. Perspectives

A look back at 1989

Tiananmen Square

Gone from Tiananmen Square are the pro-democracy banners and the tents of China's freedom movement, the armed guards and the chants of drilling soldiers. The Goddess of Democracy, a 33-foot-high replica of the Statue of Liberty which had become a symbol of the movement for democratic reform, has been crushed by tanks and taken away.

The pro-democracy protests began on April 15 with a call by students for talks on increasing social freedoms and ending official corruption. They peaked during the week of May 15, when Gorbachev visited the country, and nearly one million people poured into the streets.

Martial law was declared on May 20, and troops attempted to move into the square but were driven back by masses of citizens sympathetic to the protesters.

On June 3, troops opened fire on the protesters, smashing through barricades with tanks to reach Tiananmen Square. While the government claims that nearly 300 people, mostly soldiers, were killed, diplomats and Chinese say up to 3,000 died, and Chinese Red Cross officials estimate 3,600 people were killed and 60,000 injured.

Disasters Rocked the United States

U.S.S. Iowa Explosion

A fiery explosion in a giant gun turret rocked the refitted battleship, U.S.S. Iowa, killing 47 sailors and injuring many others.

The explosion occurred on April 19, 1989, in one of the battleship's three 16-inch gun turrets as the ship was taking part in a gunnery exercise about 330 miles northeast of Puerto Rico.

After a lengthy study, the Navy said that gunner's mate Clayton Hatwig "most likely" caused the explosion in the battleship's No. 2 gun turret by inserting a detonator between two powder bags.

But the investigation also alleged numerous lax procedures aboard the ship, including unauthorized experimentation with extra-strength gunpowder and projectile loads.

Alaskan oil spill

The Exxon Valdez, a 987-foot tanker owned by Exxon Shipping Co., struck Bligh Reef about 25 miles from Valdez, Alaska, ripping holes in its hull, gushing millions of gallons of thick crude oil into pristine Prince William Sound. The result was the largest oil spill in U.S. history.

Thousands of workers have helped scrub the oil-fouled shorelines, but as one environmental disaster consultant said, "A spill of this size in such a complex environment promises to be a cleanup nightmare."

Exxon has pulled out its cleanup crews for the winter, and the state announced its own plan to protect fish hatcheries and those still untainted areas.

Exxon has said it will re-evaluate the shorelines next spring and decide then whether to resume the cleanup on a large scale.

Is Airplane Travel Safe?

United Airlines pilot, Captain Al Haynes, declared "there is no hero" in the fiery DC-10 crash in which survivors outnumbered fatalities. Of the 296 people aboard, there were 185 survivors. Aviation experts have credited Haynes with keeping the craft aloft until he reached the airport, where hundreds of emergency workers were waiting.

The flight crew never doubted the stricken jetliner would make it to Sioux Gateway Airport, where the plane crash-landed short of a runway, flipped and broke apart.

"We must not forget that 111 people perished in this accident. This crew..is dedicated to finding the cause of this accident so we can never have it happen again," said Haynes.

Student Opinions

Despite the deadly Sioux City plane Crash, and many others like it, most LFC students still feel very safe when traveling by plane. In a survey taken by the Forester staff, we learned that 96% of the student body surveyed said they believe they are safe when they fly. Only 4% said that plane travel was unsafe.

"I do believe that airline employees should be tested for drugs and competency."

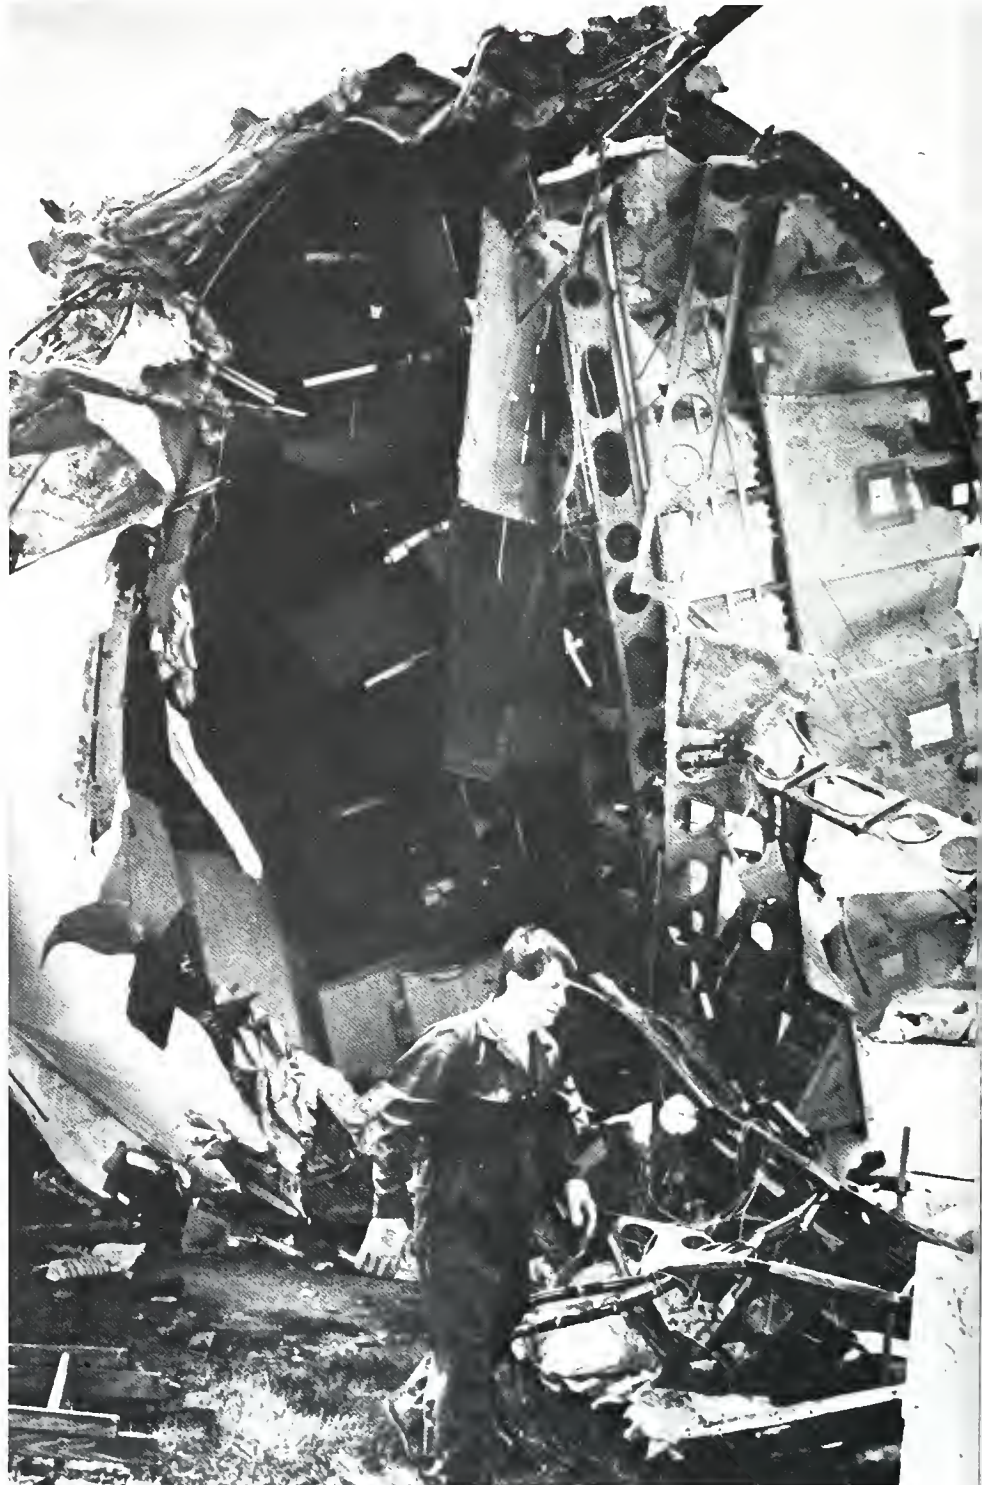

When asked why they believed air plane travel was safe, a majority of the students responded in the following way: "It is still far safer than any other mode of transportation."

Other students gave more concrete answers. "Most of the time, yes, I feel safe. Because plane crashes are very publicized, we forget that thousands of planes are still, traveling everyday without injury. I do believe that airline employees should be tested for drugs and competency."

In addition, one student said, "I think the FFA and the airlines are being more careful again because of all the crashes."

However, another student disagreed, "No, I do not feel safe because the planes we have nowadays are quite old. It is about time for the U.S. to purchase new and safer planes."

Although some students feel plane travel is risky, the majority will continue to "fly the friendly skies."

Burning the American Flag?

Left

Right

The flag issue involves two equally important questions: what is the flag, and how willing we are to allow the limitation of free speech by a tawdry political play. The first query is fairly simple to answer. The flag is a symbol of the rights and ideas of the American Constitution. The precept that burning a flag in some way harms America and its citizens is ludicrous. You can no more denigrate "the flag" than you can destroy any abstract concept. The Constitution, of which the flag is an intrinsically linked symbol, is much more susceptible to perversion. "It can be desecrated quite effectively — by amending it in ways foreign to its spirit and hostile to its purposes." (New Republic, 7/17)

The battle to limit the rights of speech and expression now joined in Washington is a battle between the Republican propaganda masters and a few politically secure, rational Democrats. Unfortunately, the Atwater propaganda machine has swayed American popular opinion in such a way that supporting American values has become equivalent with supporting the destruction of the Constitution. "McCarthyism is a term much overused in American politics these days, but Republican strategy may well have earned it by the time this nauseating spectacle is over." (NR 7/17) It is important to remember that, even in the face of such overwhelming pressure, defending the flag is, in reality, only effective when the positions are reversed. Flag burning and amending the Constitution are two radically unequal evils. The distributing problem is that the lesser may incur the greater. This would be a tragedy. It would be simpler to just ignore those who have a strange desire to destroy the symbol of our country; by attempting to prevent their expression, the Congress is giving flagburners a legitimacy that flag-burning would usually destroy. It is disturbing to see an amendment considered that would make flag burning a rational and noble cause.

On September 12 the House of Representatives voted 380-38 for a new Federal Statute that will outlaw flag burning.

This responds to the 5-4 Supreme Court decision earlier this year declaring that Gregory Lee Johnson's act of burning the flag at the 1984 Republican National Convention was within the constitutional bounds of freedom of expression.

The statute approved by the House states: "Whoever knowingly mutilates, defaces, burns or tramples upon any flag of the United States shall be fined under this title or imprisoned for not more than one year or both."

Unlike the old statute, which focuses on the issue of showing contempt towards the flag, the new contempt towards the flag, statute would incriminate any person involved in willful destruction of the flag regardless of political message.

House Democrats hope the statute will take the steam out of the drive for a constitutional amendment to overturn the Supreme Court ruling, objecting that an amendment is unwise if not foolhardy.

House Republicans in support of an amendment argue that the flag is a critical national symbol and deserves nothing less than Constitutional protection. Republicans further argue that legislation is doomed to be overturned by the Supreme Court.

The Senate is scheduled to consider both this legislation (Flag Protection Act of 1989) as well as a proposed constitutional amendment in late October. The House will also consider a Constitutional amendment.

The American flag, one of American's most inspiring icons, has come to symbolize a great deal during its 212 years. It has come to stand for what we as Americans value most: freedom and democracy. It stands for the unity of the citizens. It has become an inspiration, an inspiration that is reflected in the words of our nation anthem, promoting the hopes and dreams of both past and present generations. And now, because of a Supreme Court ruling, the American flag represents a land where the people have the right to burn it.

Burn the American flag? I'm sure many people recoil at the idea. Veterans around the country are openly outraged at the thought that they risked their lives to protect the flag so that others might have the right to burn it. Said Don Bracken, the adjutant quartermaster of the Veterans of Foreign Wars chapter in Seattle: "The flag is a symbol of the U.S., and when you destroy that flag, you destroy the principle of our country." After all hasn't there been a certain sense of reverence instilled in people's minds regarding the flag? Aren't people still taught that it is disgraceful to let the flag touch the ground? And who in their right mind hasn't been touched by pictures of it being raised at Iwa Jima or planted on the moon?

It is precisely this veneration that makes burning the flag such a wrong. As Chief Justice William Rehnquist stated in his dissent, "surely one of the high purposes of a democratic society is to legislate against conduct that is regarded as evil and profoundly offensive to the majority of people."

Two sports' legends leave the games they love

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar

Pete Rose

It seemed that the 7-foot-2 center would be on the court forever. But at 42, the oldest player in NBA history retired.

We watched him change his name from Lou Alcindor and his religion to Muslim. His Afro-style hair gave way to a clean-shaven head. He began wearing goggles as he aged.

Through most of the changes, his gracefulness endured. The skyhook was unstoppable.

On June 13, 1989, Kareem gave us his last performance. At the end of the night fans cheered him, his teammates hugged him and his opponent, Isiah Thomas, shook the hand that launched thousands of skyhooks.

When asked about retirement he said, "It really hasn't set in, as far as deeper meanings. I'm just thankful I've been able to last this long and walk out the door."

Cincinnati Reds Manager Pete Rose, one of the greatest players in the history of baseball, has been banned for life from the game for betting on his own team.

Rose, who has continued to deny he bet on baseball, cannot apply for reinstatement after one year. Even if he's turned down, the game's most prolific hitter will still be eligible for election to the Hall of Fame in 1992.

"I've been in baseball three decades and to think I'm going to be out of baseball for a very short period of time hurts," Rose said at a press conference in Cincinnati, where he was born and where he broke Ty Cobb's all-time hit record of 4,191 in 1985.

The Rolling Stones

The Rolling Stones launched their 1989 tour August 13 when they pulled into a tiny New Haven, Connecticut, nightclub for a tuneup that thrilled the 700 fans who paid $3.00 apiece for the impromptu gig.

The Stones, who had been rehearsing for the previous six weeks in the tiny northwest Connecticut town of Washington, brought the house down with an 11-song, hour-long set.

This tour is the Stones' first in eight years.

Exploring the universe

Voyager 2/Neptune

Voyager capped its historic 4.43-billion-mile, 12-year tour of four planets when it skimmed 3,048 miles over Neptune's north pole in August, then dove past Triton, the planet's largest moon. It made its closest approach about 23,900 miles above the moon's surface at 2:10 a.m. on 8/25/89.

Voyager was nearly 4.5 billion miles along a curving path that took it from Earth in 1977, past Jupiter in 1979, Saturn in 1980, and Uranus in 1986, and now past Neptune in search of the edge of the solar system. Voyager 1 explored Jupiter in 1979 and Saturn in 1980.

"If you want to understand Earth, go look at other worlds," said astronomer Carl Sagan, a member of the team that analyzed about 81,000 photographs taken by Voyager 2 and its twin, Voyager 1.

Science Wing

By Kristen Zook

As the fall progresses, so does the construction on the new addition of the science building. Despite problems with the windows, Mike Gardner, Director of Facilities Management, said, "Overall, the project is going along very smoothly."

Gardner explained that one small holdup of one or two weeks was caused by the delayed arrival of the new building's windows. The delay stemmed from the fact that the window company's Chicagoland dealer did not send the project drawings up to the manufacturing plant in Wisconsin. This caused the windows to be late in arriving at the College for installation.

The delay will not cost the College any more money, and in fact, stated Gardner, they are under budget so far on the project.

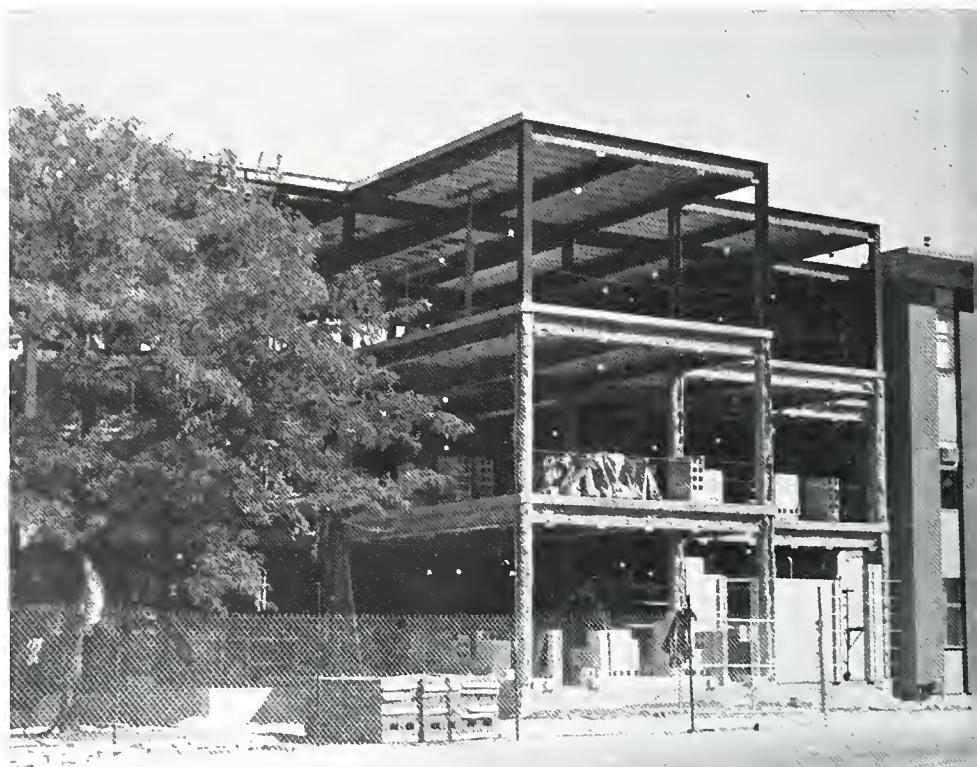

Even though the colder weather has settled in, work will continue with little or no discomfort to the workers because of the temporary heat installed in the building.

Gardner said that the weather might have been a factor in completion time if the fall had been colder. "We have been fortunate with the very mild fall," stated Gardner.

In response to the rumor that the outside of the building was behind schedule while the inside was a week ahead, Gardner responded with, "If anything, it's the other way around." He went on to praise the project manager for the lack of delays.

L.F.C. hired an architect who designed the building according to the specifications sought after by the school. Then, a project management firm was hired to act as a kind of watch dog. Gardner explained that the project management firm oversees the project, "to make sure the work is good and finished on time."

The management firm also hires and oversees the smaller companies that are responsible for the masonry, electricity, and plumbing. The firm hired by the College is Brown and Associates, who renovated North Gym and Reiter Hall.

Earthquake Rocks San Francisco

It was 4:30 on Oct 17th and a Stanford sophomore was reporting to her campus job at one of the older cafeterias on campus. As she was helping to prepare for the dinner rush, suddenly the floor began to shake and move in a wave-like motion. The entire building was in total disorder as dishes were crashing left and right, workers were screaming and running for cover, and the chandeliers were swaying back and forth in response to the quake.

The quake which struck during the evening rush hour, just as Game 3 of the World Series was about to begin, registered 6.9 on the Richter scale and was on the notorious San Andreas Fault. Killing at least 62 people and injuring hundreds others, it was the second deadliest in the nation's history, exceeded only by the 1906 San Francisco earthquake.

Hurricane Hugo

Leaving a trail of death and destruction across the Caribbean, Hurricane Hugo smashed into the coastal city of Charleston, South Carolina on September 22, 1989.

Hugo's 135-mile-an-hour winds snapped power lines, toppled trees and flooded the low-lying areas of South Carolina, causing more than half a million people to flee and leaving thousands homeless.

Congress readily approved $1.1 billion in emergency aid for the victims of Hurricane Hugo — Capital Hill's largest disaster relief package ever.

Students For Choice makes a difference

Editorial courtesy of the Stentor

The Stentor apologizes if any readers find themselves offended at the wealth of Pro-Choice material that has been published in this issue and in others past. The issue, however, has been mysteriously absent from the Opinions page, and one can only wonder why. (It's strange that students don't consider the Stentor a useful tool for voicing arguments or ideas about this and other issues.)

Basically, the issue might seem a little too clear to us Foresters: we don't think there is much to gain by exchanging letters in the newspaper. After all, who would read a Stentor letter and then actually change his or her mind on the issue?

The editors have stayed deliberately away from editorializing on the issue, partly because it seems (in a sense) like today's pop topic, and the paper is loathe to dedicate space to woman's rights just because everyone else is.

On the other hand, congratulations are in order to our campus's loyal Pro-Choicers. Many of this year's junior and seniors would never have thought this level of activism and awareness could be reached by our student body.

Sobering truth: Foresters are, compared to students at the 'top' small private liberal arts colleges in the nation, hellishly lazy. And these Pro-Choicers (i.e. the ones who go out and get things done, the active ones) are a minority but an energetic and dedicated one. Role models.

The campus would profit in its diversity if the Pro-Lifers had the same kind of vocal spirit. Come to think of it, the campus would profit if any group banded together for a cause and became as enthusiastic as our Pro-Choice delegation. So congratulations to the Choicers. Wish we all had your energy and drive. Later on, when women's rights to safe and legal abortions have long since been secured, we will have you to thank.

Students march on Washington

At we pulled into D.C. on the Rosa Jemenex bus our trusty leader Joanna took role and our friend in the pleather jacket remained seated. We were all full and content due to the fact that we had stopped at every Popeye's, McDonalds, and Denney's from the state of Illinois to the District of Columbia. Each time we reentered the bus we could trust Joanna to once again take role. We never doubted that we would reach our destiny for we sped through the night in a Greyhound driven by a man named Elmo. We got off the bus at the Pentagon and took the metro to the Lincoln Memorial. There was some confusion as to whether it was actually the Lincoln Memorial of the Supreme Court building. As we entered the park area we heard the familiar sounds of Pete Seeger singing "This land is your land." Molly Yard the president of N.O.W. led five hours of ceremonies and speeches. It was not the speeches that made the rally though it was the people. There was a sparse collection of pro-lifers, the attendance takers, men and women selling t-shirts and buttons, people crying, children, students and most vividly two guys in tight spandex yelling "skaters for choice." — Laura Crowley '91

Opposing Views on the grading system

APC looks at Grading System

by Kristin Shamas

The Academic Policies Committee (APC) is considering a proposal to add 'plus' and 'minus' marks to semester grades.

"We have appointed a subcommittee to look into it and recommend a policy by the early part of next semester. The policy will then be presented to the faculty and they will vote on it," stated Professor Nader Nazmi, Chairperson of the APC.

Senior committee member Kate Welborn stated that "It has been proposed that 'plus' and 'minus' be added to the grading system but that they not affect the four-point system. If a student gets a C- and it is considered a 1.8 then several problems arise. What if a student gets straight C's through school, except for one C-? If the C- is averaged as a 1.8, then the student does not have the 2.0 to graduate. Do we lower our standards and give this student a diploma?"

Other problems included whether or not a 1.8 is adequate for a class required to complete a major, or for prerequisite classes in which the student must earn a C.

"I don't think they should mess up the calculation system by adding 'plus' and 'minus' to the grades," said Tiffany Billingsley, '92.

Many consider adding 'plus' and 'minus' to the grading system a positive idea. "Pluses' and 'minuses' would allow a better reflection of the student's performance and work in each class," stated Chris Potter, '92.

"The system of 'plus' and 'minus' would be an advantage. It would motivate students and differentiate their performances," said Welborn. "More importantly, graduate schools are asking for pluses and minuses."

'Plus' and 'minus' can either act as an attribute or a deterrent to the graduate school applicant. When one receives a 'plus' beside a grade it helps strengthen his or her academic record. Yet a 'minus' weakens it. Stated Sandy Bozich, '92 "I support 'plusses' and 'minusses' because I have often been close to an A but have gotten a B instead. Adding a 'plus' in this situation would recognize the extra effort."

However, some students feel that the school should leave well enough alone. "The current grading system is sufficient. Adding 'plus' and 'minus' to grades forces the professor to make a more narrow evaluation of each student's work. It doesn't leave much margin for error," stated Pam Tewey '91. "Why change it? Is anyone complaining?!"

Proposed grading system receives an A+ rating

Editor:

In response to the questions posed at the end of your past article on the grading system, "why change it? Is anyone complaining?," I would like to share some thoughts.

Since coming to LFC three and a half years ago, I have been assigning plus and minus grades to students in my courses, even though I know these will not appear on the students' records. My reasons for doing this are quite simple. To me there is a big difference between a student who works hard (i.e. attends class, participates actively, turns assignments in on time, etc. . .) but doesn't quite make A-level, perhaps due to low scores on objective tests; and one who scores well on tests but puts in little or no obvious effort (i.e. misses class consistently or doesn't participate when present, hands in assignments late, etc. . .) To the first I would like to be able to give a B+ to reward him or her for trying, and to the second a B- to say that even though he or she did OK on graded work for the class, I thought he or she could do much better with a bit more effort. This is particularly important in my field, Spanish, because someone in a beginning language class who receives a C- will have an infinitely harder time in second-year Spanish than someone who receives a B+. I feel that this vast gulf is not as strongly suggested by the differences between a B and a C. It seems to me that plus and minus grades would be especially helpful to students in continuing courses such as those offered in languages and math, since they give the student a much clearer idea of where he or she stands before going on to the next level. I would welcome wholeheartedly a change of this nature in the grading system at LFC.

President Bush Visits Poland

More than 50,000 people gave President Bush a hero's welcome at the worker's monument where Solidarity was born in a wave of labor upheaval. Bush told the cheering crowd that their struggle had produced "a time when dreams can live again" in the democratic transformation of Poland.

Earlier in the day Walesa hosted a homestyle private lunch for the president and raised the possibility of even more aid to Poland by Western nations than the $115 million previously announced by Bush.

Solidarity argues that the help is needed to ensure that public unrest does not upset the delicate progress toward democracy. But it agrees any aid should have tight controls on it, so it is not wasted as it was in the past.

Before taking leave of the workers, Bush and Walesa together faced the monument and raised their arms and gave the "V" for victory, a sign used by Solidarity.

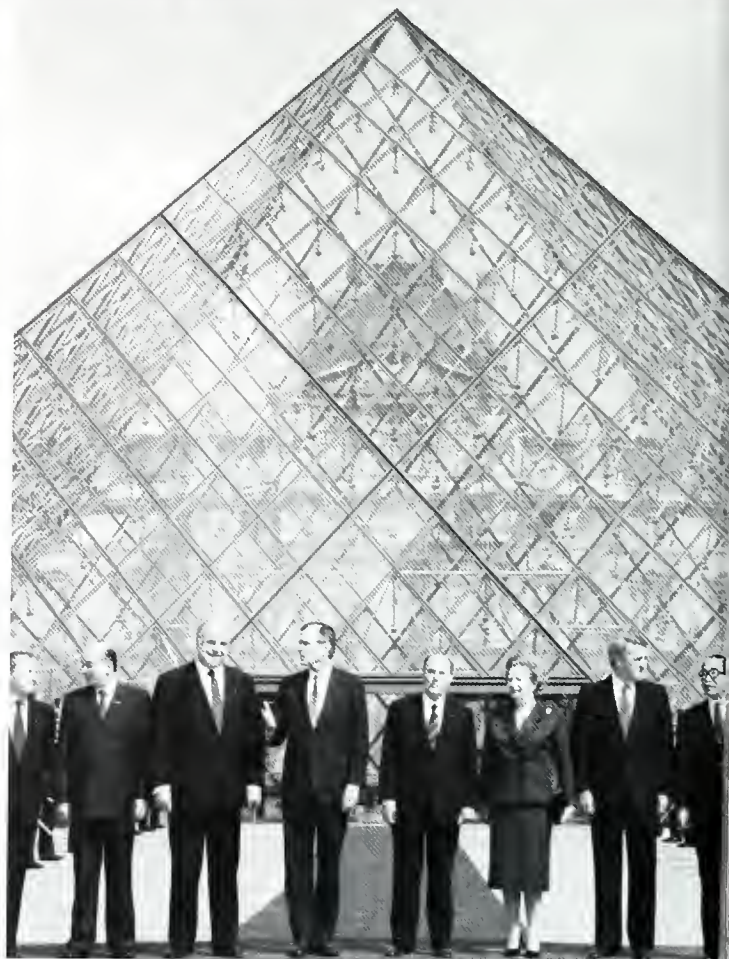

Economic Summit

Leaders of the seven most powerful Western nations gathered in front of the Louvre Pyramid for the opening session of the Economic summit in Paris. They are (l/r) President Jacques Delors, Italy's Ciriaco de Mita, West Germany's Helmut Kohl, President Bush, host French President Francois Mitterrand, Britain's Margaret Thatcher, Canada's Brian Mulroney and Japan's Sushiro Uno.

A pledge was made to address the environmental problems that threaten the planet, and they endorsed a significant strategic switch in the way rich countries cope with the Third World's staggering $1.3 trillion debt.

For the first time, the seven leaders agreed that the best way to ease the debt burden of poorer nations is to persuade banks to provide some relief instead of simply issuing new loans. The problem of terrorism, narcotics and East-West relations were also addressed.

"And the Wall Came Tumbling Down"

by Craig Lepkowski

LFC junior Steve Wittry was present in Germany when the Berlin Wall was officially opened. "I was standing on the wall, dancing with people," Wittry reported in a phone interview.

Wittry and some other students were participants in an overseas program in Germany sponsored by Millersville University of Millersville, Pennsylvania.

They were on a week-long vacation and decided to take advantage of the time to visit Berlin. They travelled for nine hours on a bus and arrived in West Berlin on November 8.

The following day, they "tried to see a demonstration in East Berlin. But we ended up on the wrong side of a huge building and missed it all . . . except for a guy who had a telephoto lens on his camera. He said he got some good pictures," Wittry said. "There were about 25,000 people in the rally," he stated.

On November 10, Wittry was present at Checkpoint Charlie, the crossing point through the Wall located in the American sector of Berlin, to witness the crossing of about 200 individuals within two hours.

"People were cheering and drivers were blowing their horns. There was a ton of people. Some were setting off bottle rockets," explained Wittry. "Any time someone crossed the border everyone would cheer loudly."

Wittry's older brothers said, "An interesting point that other papers might not have covered is the time it took Steve to get there (Berlin) compared to the time he needed to return to school."

The nine-hour trip was extended to 22 hours. "There was a 14-and-a-half-hour traffic jam," explained Dave Wittry, Steve's oldest brother, and a recent LFC graduate. "Steve told us that it took so long because people would, when stopped in traffic, get out and hug each other, drink wine and beer together or just talk. Then when traffic started to move, all the drivers wouldn't return to their cars for quite a while."

Wittry will remain in Germany until the middle of August and will return to LFC to complete his senior year.

"It was absolutely incredible walking down Kurfuerstendamm, West Berlin's largest shopping boulevard, at 1 a.m. and seeing literally tens of thousands of East Berliners coming like a heat wave. They drove, walked, and rode bicycles — or were carried in fathers' arms! They were greeted by thousands of cheering West Berliners who lined the streets giving away anything and everything from coffee and beer, to roses, balloons, and even money. The atmosphere was simply one of a kind."

Vietnamese Boat People

More than 61,000 boat people fled Vietnam in the first eight months of 1989, a figure higher than any full year since 1981, and Hong Kong is bearing the brunt of the influx.

Most of the newcomers in the British colony face forced repatriation as "economic migrants" because only those boat people who arrived before June 16, 1988, were automatically considered to be fleeing political persecution.

There have been many fights in the overcrowded Hong Kong camps, and cholera has broken out among other Vietnamese refugees living in primitive conditions on outlying islands.

Although Communist Vietnam is encouraging the voluntary return of migrants who are refused refugee status, only 260 have gone back despite formal assurances that they need not fear reprisals.

Students' Attitudes

LFC students were asked to respond to the following question: "Do you believe the burning of the U.S. flag should be illegal? Why or why not?"

Forty-eight percent of those surveyed said yes, burning the American flag should be illegal. Forty-four percent believed it should be legal while eight percent said they were undecided.

Here are some of the responses. . .

YES

"It is a symbol of our freedom and should not be destroyed in any way."

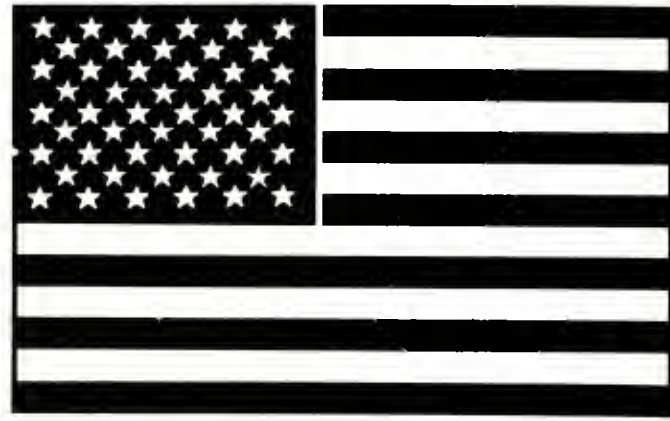

"Burning the flag should be illegal. The flag has national meaning. If you feel that if you burn the flag, you are saying you hate America. And if that is the case, you shouldn't be here."

"It is not right to burn the symbol of our country that so many men fought and died for."

NO

"It is the symbol of our freedom."

"The liberty the flag stands for is what's important not the actual quilt."

"It's the beginning of the end of freedom in America."

and beliefs can make things worse."

College to abolish seven-and-a-half week courses

In the Spring semester, Lake Forest College students can take seven-and-a-half week courses in addition to fifteen week courses. The seven-and-a-half week courses were originally created so a student would have the opportunity to enroll in an extremely intense and rigorous course for half of a semester and take an internship the second half. Starting in the fall of 1990, seven-and-a-half week courses will be abolished.

The response of the faculty to creation of these shorter courses was not always very enthusiastic because they believed, as some still believe, that seven and a half weeks is not enough time for a student to get fully immersed into their course.

Many faculty members are also upset because some students spend too much of their time studying for a seven-and-a-half week course, causing them to do poorly in their other classes.

There was only one professor who voted against abolishing the courses.

Lee Thompson, Acting Dean of Faculty remarked that, "The teachers felt as if the courses were pushed on them which is not the best way to teach."

When it was first implemented, the concept sounded as if it would be an academically challenging and exciting option, but as Thompson said, with time, "the disadvantages seemed to out-weigh the advantages."

Another problem is that only two students this year are involved in an internship and the rest of the students are doing other activities such as using the time for writing tutorials or just spending more time on campus.

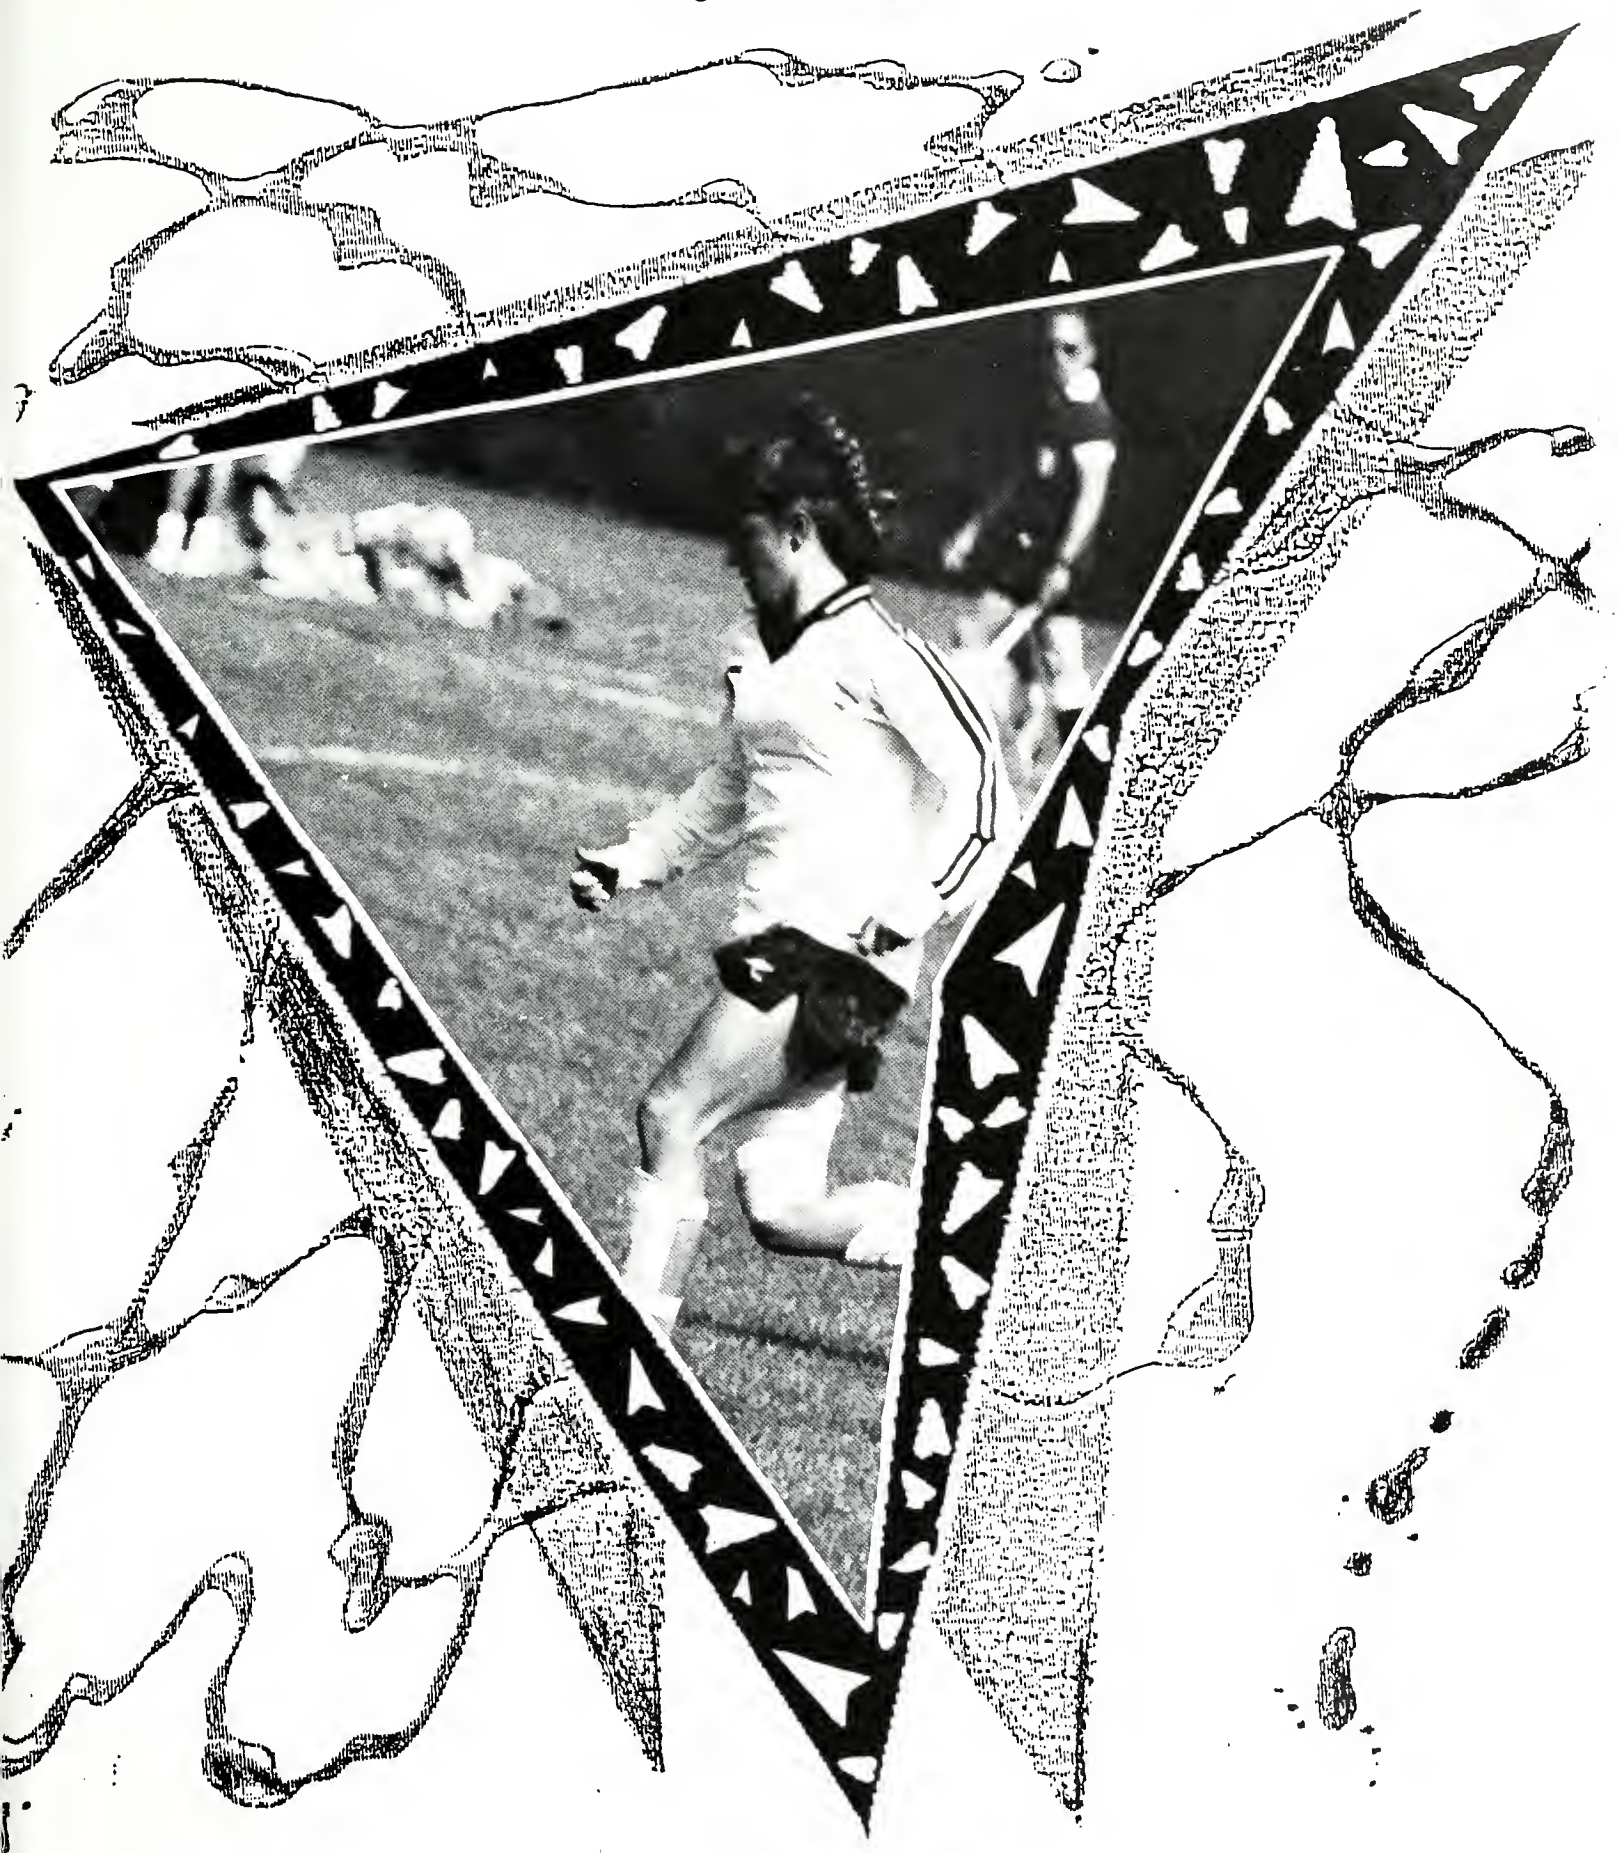

GA Representative Laura Bancroft stated that, "The primary purpose of the classes is gone." Bancroft said she was informed that "The faculty felt obligated to teach the courses and they were not enjoying it."

If the school stops offering these courses, the students in the Lake Forest College Program in Greece program who take less than three credits in Greece will not be able to fulfill the requirements of a four credit semester. The students going to Greece need to take one seven-and-a-half week course as a required preparatory class.

Dan Cole, director of the Greece Program, stated, "The only people who will be disadvantaged are the students in the Greece program, but with cooperation from other departments it can be done."

Men's Soccer

The Lake Forest College men's soccer team finished its 1989 season, beating Trinity Christian 3-0 on Monday, October 23, then losing 1-0 to Trinity College on Wednesday, October 25.

LFC ends the season with an overall record of 6-8 and a Midwest Collegiate Athletic Conference (MCAC) record of 2-2.

Freshman forward Stefan Peirson opened the scoring against Trinity Christian midway through the first half, assisted by senior captain Sam Woodger and Greg Boltz. Boltz and Woodger, both forwards, then added goals of their own in the second half.

The game was no contest in the shots-on-goal department — freshman goalie Todd Parola (Dexter, ME) faced only six shots while his teammates fired the astonishing total of 42 shots at Trinity goal. "They weren't down in our end a lot," LFC coach Tony Fritz said in an understatement. Parola was again in goal against Trinity College where this time the Foresters were outshot 16-12. Trinity scored the only goal of the game off a penalty shot. "That game was typical of our whole season," Fritz said. "The other team scored off a dead ball situation. We've had more goals scored on us in that type of situation than I can remember. We had opportunities to score but just couldn't capitalize."

The Foresters wound up in third place in the MCAC North Division behind Lawrence University and St. Norbert College.

Led by captains Bobby Crossman (90) and Doug Bowman (91), the Forester hockey team, at presstime, had a record of 9-7 for the season. Coach Tony Firtz stated, "Right now I have got two who are hot." He was speaking of junior Steve Collins and sophomore Dan Vacco. Other Key players include senior forward Dave Szazynski, sophomore forward Kevin Delaney, and freshman forward Bryan Desmond. The Foresters proved their skill when they lost 3-2 to Babson College, the nation's second ranked team, in front of a capacity crowd of 1,500 on Babson's rink.

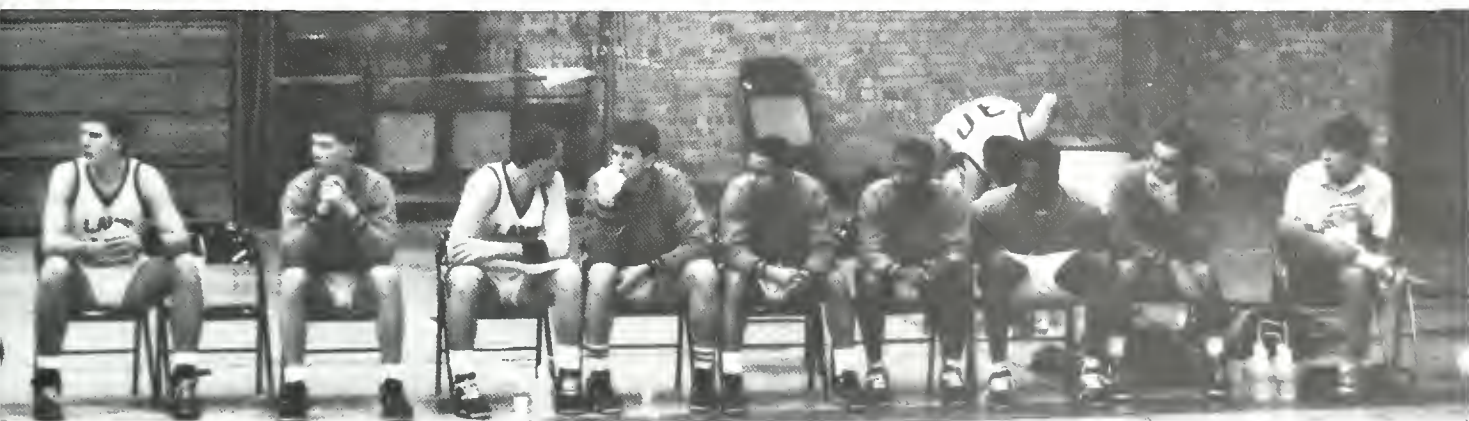

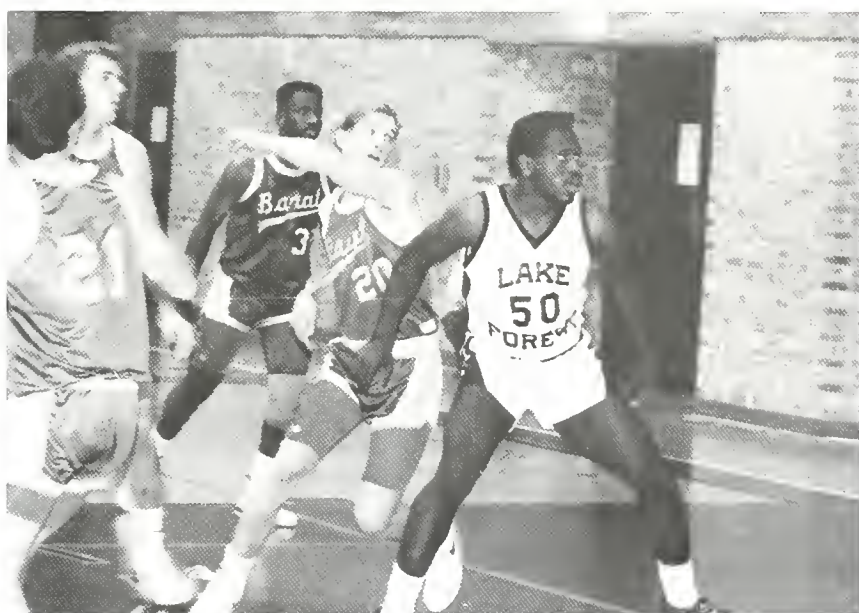

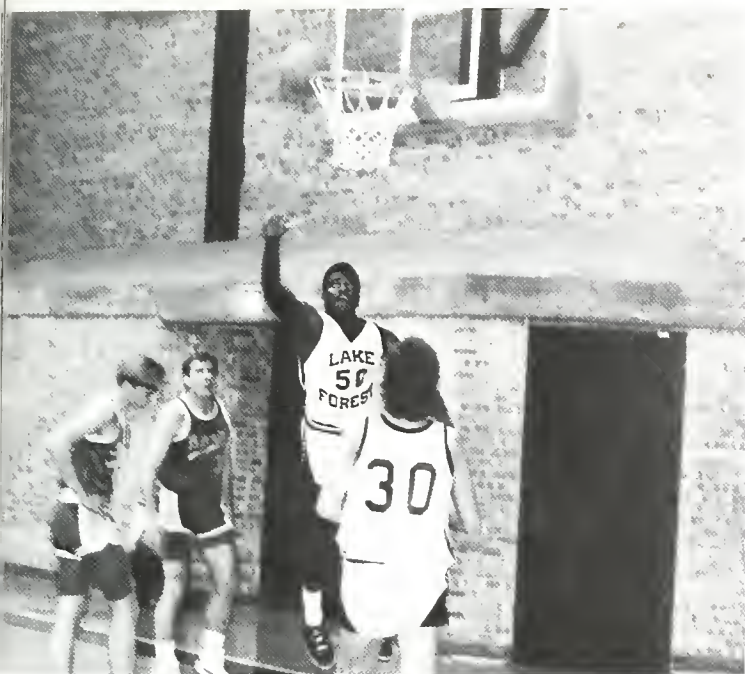

Men's Basketball

At press time, the men's basketball team was 1-3 in the MCAC, Midwest Collegiate Athletic Conference, and 5-9 overall. The team had just lost to Monmouth, 87-77, and to Cornell, 81-64. Brent Hudson, freshman, had just been named the starting center. Key players for the Foresters included freshman Jim Adams, sophomore Otis Muttagee, juniors Gary Francis and Tony Vigon, seniors Rob Conley and Jason Bryn.

Women's Tennis Places Fifth in Conference

by Jan Allen

Lake Forest College junior Kris Ang (Northbrook, IL) successfully defended her Midwest Athletic Conference for Women's tennis title at the conference meet in Madison, WI.

The Foresters finished fifth of eleven teams overall at the October 20-22 meet.

"Kris is really an attribute to this school," head coach Cille Ramsey said. "She is definitely well respected as the best player in the conference."

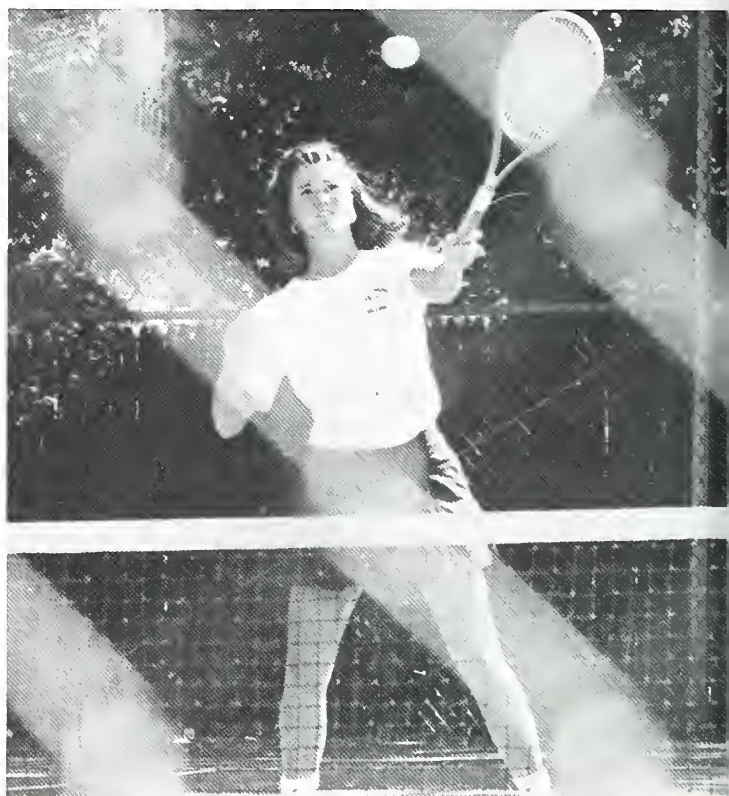

Ang started her winning weekend on Friday, October 20, with a three-set victory over Knox College's Melanie Gibbs, 6-2, 5-7, 6-3. Saturday, October 21, Ang took on Courtney Unger of Beloit in the semi-finals and won 6-2, 6-3. Cornell's Ann Hamilton was the victim as Ang beat her 6-2, 6-4 for the title.

Every LFC player contributed points to the team effort, though none made it past the semi-finals in her event. Senior Jen Rauch (Palatine, IL) at third singles and freshman Heather Reilly (Farmington Hills, MI) at the number-six spot both lost in the semis.

Freshmen Amy Holzer (Sarasota, FL) at number four and Brenda Stotts (Boone, IA) at number five both lost in the quarterfinals. Sophomore Sandy Bozich (Hawthorn Woods, IL) won the second-singles consolation match.

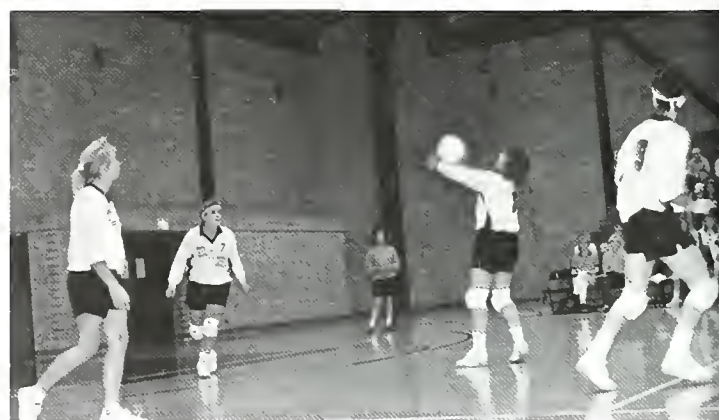

In doubles play, Ang and Bozich won their first match, lost their next one to Kris Semrad and Katy Trapp of Ripon, 5-7, 4-6, in what Ramsey called the teams's best match of the season. Rauch and Holzer lost in the first round but won their consolation, and Stotts and freshman Sarah Raynor (Trumbull, CT) won their opening match at third doubles, but then lost.

Ripon won the tournament followed by Beloit. The Foresters finished the 1989 season with a 2-10 record, 1-5 in the MACW.

Volleyball finishes sixth at MACW Championships

by Jan Allen

The LFC volleyball team finished sixth out of eleven teams at the MACW championships held in Jacksonville, IL, at Illinois College. The Foresters ended the tournament with a 1-4 record, bringing their overall record to 15-16 and 4-5 in the MACW.

During the tournament, the team lost 6-15, 12-15 to arch-rival St. Norbert College who ended up winning the tournament. Co-captains senior Mary Vcelka and junior Kelly O'Brien led with six kills apiece while junior Patty Moran and sophomore Jen Giese each had five.

After losing to the Green Knights, the Foresters fell to Knox College, 7-15, 5-15, in the only game in which head coach Jackie Slaats feels the team did not play well.

LFC ended the day with a 15-11, 16-14 win over Coe College, turning around the losing streak. O'Brien led in kills with eight, followed by Nicole Angeli with seven.

Saturday morning, the team lost a close match to Beloit College.

"The Beloit match was great, probably the best match of the whole tournament," Slaats said of the 15-13, 15-13 loss. "We just didn't end up on top." Vcelka led with 14 kills followed by Angeli with 12 and O'Brien with 11.

Lake Forest's final match of the tournament against Cornell College was the only match stretched to three games for the Foresters, who again ended on the losing side of a 1-15, 15-6, 5-15 score.

The Foresters had a perfect serving match, with no missed serves in any of the three games. "I think we played really well," Slaats said. "I'm not upset at all with our performances."

As for next season, the Foresters appear to be strong. The team only loses Vcelka, returning six of the seven starters for the 1990 season.

Women's Soccer Clinches First in the MACW

by Jan Allen

The Lake Forest College Women's Soccer Team, by splitting a pair of non-conference games last week, finished the 1989 season with a 7-7 record.

While LFC already had clinched first place in the Midwest Athletic Conference for Women a week earlier, with an undefeated conference record of 6-0, the team had yet to win a non-conference game all season.

Nothing changed on Thursday, October 26, as LFC lost 1-0 to the University of Chicago. But the Foresters ended their year on a positive note — and with a non-conference win — with a 2-1 win over the University of Wisconsin — Steven's Point on Saturday, October 28.

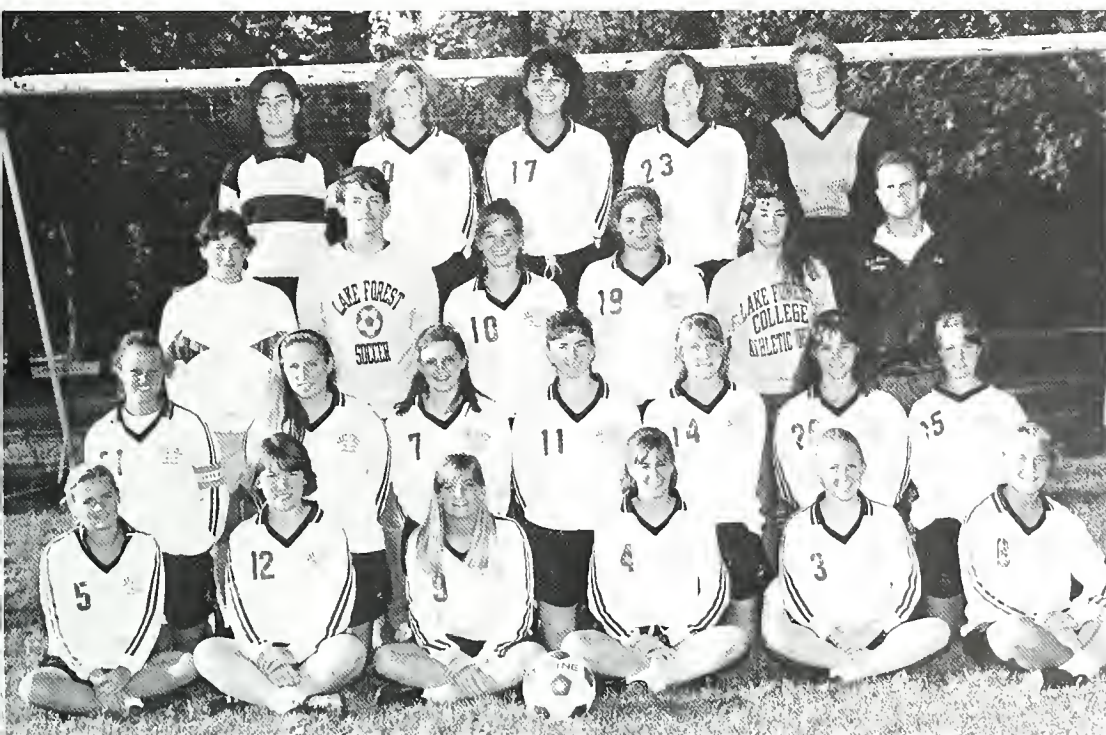

LFC was simply outplayed by Chicago, with sophomore Traci Lane in goal replacing the injured Shelly Keller, a sophomore from Sturtevant, WI, who was out with a strained achilles tendon. LFC was outshot 13-6. "We just couldn't put the ball in," head coach Nancy Feldman said.

On Saturday, senior co-captain and midfielder Priscilla Posick (Waukesha, WI) returned to her old position in the LFC goal and made seven saves to preserve the narrow win. UW — Steven's Point outshot LFC 8-4.

Junior forward Nikki Tarandy (Orland Park, IL) scored the first goal unassisted just seven minutes into the game. Sophomore Larisa Stross (Milwaukee, WI) — who is being groomed as Posick's successor at center halfback — added the game winner with 22 minutes left in the game, assisted by Tarandy.

Tarandy ended the season with 12 goals and nine assists, followed by Posick with seven goals and three assists. Stross was third with four goals and three assists.

Organizations

Alpha Pi Delta

Alpha Pi Delta is a sorority whose goal is to be an organizational asset to Lake Forest College and the surrounding communities. The members of $\text{A}\Pi\Delta$ are involved in college organizations ranging from College Life Advisory Board to Resident Assistants to Peer Counselors to athletics.

The sorority participated in community services associated with the College, such as phonathon calling in the spring, timing at swim meets, and decorating the College's Christmas tree. It also provided numerous all-campus parties with colorful themes.

In addition, $\text{A}\Pi\Delta$ members engaged in community services in the surrounding towns. Members volunteered at the Lake County Marathon, donated Thanksgiving, Christmas and Easter dinner to a needy family, volunteered at the Presbyterian Church's rummage Sale and donated clothing to a local residential school for behaviorally disturbed boys. Gamma Rho Delta Gamma Rho Delta sorority is a women's organization which is dedicated to enhancing the LFC community through the sponsorship of various social and community services throughout the year.

Gamma Rho volunteers for a range of activities from campus wide clean up to "Bowling for kids" in which the proceeds go to unfortunate children. The sorority also hosts many theme parties as well as co-sponsoring events such as Greek weekend. Gamma Rho continues to be a positive outlet for it's members as for the campus as a whole.

By Suzanne Generous

Lake Forest College has a new addition to the Greek system this fall. Gamma Phi Omega, a local chapter of Gamma Phi Beta was created to bring another social organization for the women of the campus.

Marlene Rapp, '90, president and one of the founding members of the sorority explained the evolution of Gamma Phi. "Around the end of our sophomore year, a couple friends and I decided that we wanted to start something new. We didn't feel that we fit into the other residential groups. We wanted a group that was less limiting. We talked to Professor van Newenhizen last year and she agreed to be our advisor. Then we faced CLAB (College Life Advisory Board) to discuss our plans and received our charter in

Rapp believes that there was a need for another sorority. "We offer an alternative social outlet for women. Gamma Phi is community service oriented. We work with Gorton community Center (uptown) and the Lake Forest Rec Center. We don't just have parties." Bev Moore, '90, agrees. She explains "We have common goals that won't just get sidetracked into social functions."

Gamma Phi Omega is different, the members say, because of its diversity. Moore believes that because the sorority is "so new and different, we could fashion our own style and didn't have to be a clique. You can be yourself and still co-exist with this wonderful group. Our strength is our diversity." Brenna Carbee states, "I pledged because it was so diverse. There are all different types of people. We have athletes and minorities." Rapp continues the list by emphasizing the different groups: "A couple of us are musicians, we have a number of members of the Residential Staff. There are GA representatives."

Gamma Phi is housed in Harlan. Robyn Askelof, '90, doesn't mind. "We've done a lot of work down there, and it looks really good. I kind of like it." Rapp agrees. "We were disappointed when we didn't get the Gregory lounge. Harlan is small but we will get to use the double space lounge so that will be better."

Rapp said, "Last year I was skeptical that we would never get off the ground. But now that it's finally taken shape, I am so ready for this to work. Everyone is so excited."

A.C.C.E.S.S. stands for African-Americans and Others Committed to an Open Community for Equality, Cultural Sensitivity, and Service. Formerly known as Black United and Concerned Students, or B.U.C.S. It began in the spring of 1989 as an effort to increase cultural awareness within the LFC community. The goals of the organization are to educate the broader community, and to be a support mechanism for African-American students. Programs sponsored by A.C.C.E.S.S. include Big Brother/Sister Program, Black History Month, and Senior Send-Off. The entire campus community is welcome to participate in all activities.

Hispanic Circle

The Hispanic Circle, formerly the Spanish Club, is the most active foreign language organization. We sponsor a wide variety of activities ranging from social, cultural, and educational, in order to promote the understanding of the vast and rich Hispanic culture. Outings to restaurants like Tania's, the Black Tulip, and Bristol's familiarize students with Hispanic 'cuisine' as well as Latin beats like salsa, merengue, and cumbia. The Brazilian Carnival in Chicago exposes us to yet another type of dance, samba. This, our third year at the carnival, proved to be even better than the previous years. In December we host a traditional Piñata party where young and old try their luck at breaking the pinatas, while a Mariachi band adds a Mexican flavor to the festivity. We meet regularly for Spanish Table, thus allowing the participants in the Madrid program to practice the language before going abroad. Twice we have done a welcome-back party for those students returning from Madrid and Costa Rica. In the spring, we present Latin-American Week where local consuls or their representatives inform the LFC community of current events in Latin America. In conjunction with the 1987 LFC graduate Maria Velez de Berliner, the Hispanic Circle sponsors an essay contest in Spanish. Several of us have visited junior highs and shared our experiences in Latin America with the students. On several occasions we help at SAFE RIDE. We bring performers to Coffeehouse, so everyone can enjoy them. Last but not least, we always make sure to help our Latin American brothers when natural disasters hit them, as in the case of Hurricane Hugo in Puerto Rico.

The Hispanic Circle wishes to thank Addriana Bonewitz for her continuous support.

Monday I tied blue ribbons in her hair before she went to school.
Tuesday I packed her teddy bear and she was off to camp.
Friday I drove her to college with her silver flute.
Sunday she moved to Manhattan

Will the neighbors on East 35th Street please see that she doesn't dawdle
